APPENDICES

A1. FILM SCREENING RIGHTS

All films require that you obtain permission from the rights holders prior to the screening. Sometimes right holders will grant you permission free of charge, sometimes it will cost you up to a thousand dollars, depending on the title.

How do I obtain the screening rights?

1. If the film received a major theatrical release (that is, if the film ever screened at a local theater in Madison), there’s a good chance that either Swank Motion Pictures or Criterion Pictures, USA holds the screening rights. To search their databases, visit:
   - http://www.criterionpic.com/cpl/qsearch.htx

   If you find your film at either site, contact those companies directly to inquire about the costs involved with screening a particular title.

   Note: most Swank/Criterion titles will cost roughly $350-$500 if the film has already been released on home video. If the film is not yet available on DVD (if it’s still in second-run theaters), that price can double.

2. If you cannot find your title on either Swank or Criterion’s webpage, but it’s still a fairly big or even indie title, try searching for it on the Internet Movie Database.
   b. search for the title
   c. On the film’s IMDb page, there is a link on the left-hand column under “Overview” called “company credits.” Click on that link.
   d. In the section “Distributors,” look for the “USA theatrical distributor” and Google that company to find their contact information.

3. If the film you’re looking for is smaller, one that you think may not have played in Madison before, your best bet to locate the distributor would be to Google the film title and see if the film has its own webpage. Most films do, and on that site there is usually a “contact us” page. Send an email...
asking for a price quote. Make sure you emphasize that you will NOT be charging admission for the screening.

4. If you have questions or need help tracking down the screening rights, contact Tom Yoshikami at 608-890-3400 / tsyoshikami@wisc.edu.

What do I do once I’ve obtained the screening rights?

1. Forward a copy of your receipt for payment to Tom Yoshikami tsyoshikami@wisc.edu.
2. Request that the rights holder emails Tom Yoshikami tsyoshikami@wisc.edu to confirm that the rights have been granted.

A2. COLLABORATING WITH WUD FILM

The Wisconsin Union Directorate (WUD) Film Committee (http://wudfilm.com) has been screening films on campus for over 70 years. The Committee is comprised of roughly 50 passionate students who take pride in bringing hundreds of different films to campus every year. The Director of the Committee, along with her nine Associate Directors, help make sure that the Marquee is the home for film on campus.

WUD Film loves to collaborate with other groups. Last year they organized 57 screenings in collaboration with dozens of RSOs and departments from all over campus.

Why would you be interested in collaborating with WUD Film?

- Financial support: WUD Film will cover the theater usage fee. They may also help cover the costs of the projectionist labor and screening fees.
- Marketing: WUD Film will help you publicize your screening. They maintain a 6,000+person email list, a highly trafficked webpage, and often put up flyers for films all over campus.
- Audience-building: WUD Film screenings in the Marquee bring in over 1,200 moviegoers every week. Collaborating with WUD Film means that you have access to that audience.

Why would WUD Film be interested in collaborating with you?

That’s a great question. The Film Committee receives dozens of proposals for collaboration every semester and cannot accommodate them all. As you think about a potential collaboration, ask yourself what WUD Film has to benefit from the screening? The more attractive your collaboration is to them (important and great film, large potential audience, marketing that you will do, etc.), the more likely they’ll approve it.

For more information on the WUD Film Committee, visit: http://www.wudfilm.com. To contact WUD Film about a potential collaboration, contact the Collaborations Associate Director, wudfilmcollaborations@gmail.com.
